My dream

An Exciting Day in a Dragon Training School

I’m a twelve-year-old boy who loves exciting sports. Dragon racing is the most exciting sport in Brek Island. I have always wanted to fly a dragon.

Yesterday, I went to a dragon training school to learn about dragons. My teacher Hiccup told me about the characteristics and habits of dragons. I really learned a lot about them in the lessons.

Next, Teacher Hiccup took me to a big piece of grass land and started to teach me how to fly a dragon and I quickly learned many training tricks. For example, when I tapped his back, he would spit out a fire ball!

After two hours, teacher Hiccup arranged a dragon race. I was confident I could win the race. I used my new dragon called Try Fighter and we won the first runner up prize. Of course my teacher Hiccup won the first prize.

I still have a lot to learn from teacher Hiccup but I know how to train dragons now! What an exciting day!
A Special Day at a Japanese School

In Spring, I joined a Tokyo study tour. I had an unforgettable experience on the day which I went to a Japanese school.

The school is called Sakura School. Nearby by the ther were lots of pretty sakura so I thought that was the reason why the school was called Sakura School. Soon, the class teacher saw me and took me to the classroom. I felt surprised about this new school.

When I stepped in the classroom, I saw a big blackboard and the classroom was very tidy. When the teacher was introducing me, I could hear some students whispering about me. I felt nervous and I didn’t know how they saw me.

Then, I sat at a corner which was near the window and we started our lesson. In the break, the classmates came to me and gave me a card. “This is for you! We hope that you can have a great day today!” they said cheerfully with a big smile. Next, they invited me to play with them together! I was so delighted that I nodded my head immediately. When it was lunch time, I talked with my new friends and share our happiness happily.

Time flies! It was time to go home. I said goodbye to my friends, teachers and the principal. I had learned their culture and a lot of other things from this school. It made me feel nice and interested at last. I stared the sakura for a long time, and went away with a smile.
A Special Day at a Superhero (Avengers) School

In the summer holidays, I had a very special day at the Superhero (Avengers) school in the U.S.A.

When I arrived at the school, I saw many super heroes, such as Iron-man, Captain America, Thor. I was delighted. I rushed to the "Tony Stark Flying Experience". After I went in, I saw Tony Stark wearing his Iron-man suit. He taught me how to use his suit to fly around. It was very exciting.

After the flying lesson, I went to have a shield throwing lesson with Captain America. At first, I thought that the shield was very heavy. But after practising, I could throw it quickly and hit the targets. I was so proud and elated.

Finally, I visited the S.H.I.E.L.D. fighters and learnt how to control them to fight against the enemy. I also used what I learnt today to help The Avengers fight against Ultron and his Iron-bots. Again, I felt so fantastic and delighted to be at this school for the day.

After all the activities, it was already 6 p.m. and I had to go back to the hotel.

I hope I can visit here again and learn even more from other Superheroes.
A Special Day at a Japanese School

In June, I went to Japan with my friend Kitty. The weather there was very hot. We went to join the Teikomatsuri, which was a special celebration day at Teiko school.

Teiko is a famous middle school, so in the Teikomatsuri, there were many people and booths set up by classes or clubs. We ran to the basketball court as I wanted to meet Kuroko, Akashi and Atsushi and Kitty wanted to meet Midorima. I felt so excited when I saw them that I almost shouted!

Kitty likes Midorima. They talked a lot and they became friends! I gave some snacks to Atsushi, a novel to Kuroko and a set of shogi to Akashi. I hoped they would love the gifts. The students who sold things kept shouting and there was a live show in the middle of the sports field. It was as noisy as a circus!

After we finished meeting the people we wanted to see and visiting the places we wanted to go, we started playing games and bought some food from the booths. The games were fun and the food was delicious. Although we were tired, we won some gifts like a teddy bear and packs of snacks.

Today was the happiest day of my life so far!

A fabulous day at a multi-sports school

Today it’s Valentine’s Day, so people should be very romantic on this day. However, this word ”romantic” didn’t fit with my sporty friends and me because today was our first time to study at the no.1 sports school -a school which my PE teacher strongly recommended us to attend! However, I felt it would be quite frightening because the coaches in sport schools are usually very fierce and require their students to perform in a really strict way!

When we stepped nervously onto the beautiful campus, almost 100 teachers bowed to us deeply and politely! Then, 2 of them brought us to a gigantic football field for the first football lesson! We all felt really glad while we were listening to their detailed teaching. They really showed their creativity to teach every single student! After practicing some skills, we had a competition. At last, we even achieved the champion’s award, because we showed excellent sportsmanship and cooperated nicely throughout the competition! We felt really happy!

After that, we entered the ‘great auditorium’ to look at some professional swimming competitions -including boys 100m freestyle and 10km open water competition...and more! Although we have to write a 200-word report after watching, we still enjoyed it a lot!

After a great feasting and then a rest, we had to face another challenge! Today, we’re going to learn the basics skills of playing water polo. We learnt many swimming and defensive techniques. After learning, we had a competition. I grabbed the ball bravely from my enemy and shot it to the opposite side’s gantry! It was really unbelievable! Moreover, the coach even praised me!

I felt really happy today! I learnt many sports techniques and had many chances to play and chat with my friends. I felt his school was really great and I will study here again-definitely!
Last summer holiday, I went to Korea for one week by myself. I was going to stay at the Rainbowbridge agency because they had a K-pop training school there. I was excited to join it and I hoped that I can get there very fast! After I said goodbye to my mum and dad, I went inside the airport. After a while, I got on the airplane. Four hours later, I was in Korea! I got on a bus and went to the Rainbowbridge agency with all the other people.

Rainbowbridge agency was awesome and their lobby was big. A teacher called Jason led us to a room. When I went inside, a lot of people were dancing. They were extremely hardworking but I thought the steps were quite hard. After that, we went to the recording studio, and listened to the other people recording. Their voices were amazing! After that, we went to a room and sat down for a Korean class. I learned a lot of useful phrases, I felt very good.

Next, we went to a room for practicing singing. Five people went in one group, so I joined Victoria, Yoyo, Selena and Bella. We loved the same kinds of boys and girls KPop groups. We wanted to sing "Reset". Victoria, Selena and Bella handled the singing part, Yoyo and I handled the rap part. After we sang the song, everybody clapped and admired us. We felt very happy and pleased.

After that, we went to practice dancing. Jason taught us to dance "Only You" I thought that was quite easy and I really fell in love with this song. We danced for a long time, I wanted to have a break but Jason said "No recess, keep dancing, don't stop!" I was so tired and a little bit scared of him. At last, he let us take a break.

I want to visit this school again! It was fun and interesting and I really enjoyed it. I was the best one in my class, so I was happy and pleased. I made a lot of friends there and we promised to keep contact. Next summer we will join this program again together.
An Exciting Day at an Underwater School

What an exciting experience! Today is my birthday and I joined an exchange programme. I had a marvelous day in an under-water school, Water Fun School. It was the best birthday gift that I had ever received!

When I stepped into Water Fun School, I felt surprised and curious. All of the students were wearing diving suits and they brought oxygen containers wherever they went. The most interesting thing was all the teachers in this school were pretty mermaids! I walked towards my classroom joyfully.

It was a yellow submarine and when I went inside, the teacher said in a sweet voice, “Welcome to Water Fun School! You may choose a stingray or a shark to be your chair.” I chose a cool stingray and tried to sit on it but I found it quite difficult to control. A boy who was sitting on a shark came towards me and said, “Hi, nice to meet you! It may be a bit difficult for you.” Then he taught me how to control the stingray patiently. I found that stingrays and sharks are not as terrible as we thought! I heard the sound of the waves and the sea animals. How relaxing it was!

We learnt to protect the ocean and we learnt about various kinds of sea animals in the lesson. In the recess time, I made a new friend. He was Nemo, the monitor in class. We played hide and seek against the coral happily. He was a really friendly boy!

At dawn, it was time to leave. I didn’t want to leave this wonderful school! I hope I can visit Water Fun School in the future again!
An unforgettable day at a flying school

I was at the entrance of the school. I stepped on the soft white cloud, taking a deep breath. The air was fresh. It was sunny and hot. What a wonderful day for me!

The school buildings were made of clouds. All of the teachers and classmates put on a pair of wings. I felt curious and amazed. It was mystical. There were lots of birds that I had never seen before. They were beautiful. Everything looked different from earth and it was so interesting. The clouds were just like white marshmallows. I wanted to swallow them all as I was getting hungry.

A teacher flew towards me and she said, “Get your wings in the cloud office and go to the cloud hall. The principal will announce what the students will learn today.” I followed the teacher and went to the hall. There were lots of students who were playing and talking. They looked happy. The principal told us that we would learn how to fly in the lesson. I felt excited and hoped the lesson would begin very soon so that I could fly freely in the air. However things didn’t happen as I expected.

My classmates and I went to a track. It was made of cloud too. Our teacher told us to be careful and taught us flying skills. We watched the teacher fly and I didn’t blink my eyes once. I tried to fly, but I couldn’t. I tried again and again but I still couldn’t fly. I didn’t know why. I was tired. I wanted to give up. My classmates encouraged me and told me not to give up. They gave me lots of power and I was touched.

I kept trying and my teacher and classmates helped me. I tried hard to fly. Finally, I did it. I was happy and proud of myself. Although I didn’t fly well, I still completed my target. It was interesting. I hope I will have another chance to visit this school again. What an unforgettable experience for me!
Today was a sunny day. It was also my first day in a hi-tech school because I just moved to a new house in another district. So I needed to change to a new school.

In the morning, I took a bus to my new school. I was very shocked because all the outside layer of the school was a screen. The screen would change pictures every second. Suddenly, a student touched my shoulder and said, “Hello! Are you Steven? I am Tom, your classmate.” I blushed and just nodded my head because I didn’t know him very much.

When I came to the classroom, I heard many classmates chatting loudly. Suddenly my teacher said, “The game of the first day starts now!” After that, I fell onto the ground with my chair.

Then I saw a big basketball court and my classmates. We all changed into basketball vests and played a fantastic match. After the match, we all changed back into our uniform. I thought it was very amazing. The class teacher came back and explained to us that the things in the match were not real. The image just came from a simulator which was invented by the teachers.

After the game, we had a lesson which was about the structure of smart phones. Finally, it was the end of my school day. I think this school is wonderful so I will work hard to build a school like this in every country in the future.
Last Sunday afternoon, Mum and I were shopping for food in the market which was near Citywalk. Then, when we finished shopping, it was almost 3 o'clock so we went to Café de Coral to have an afternoon tea.

“It was so yummy that I'm very full now!” I said cheerfully. After that, we went to take the MTR which was going to Tsing Yi. “Tonight I'm going to cook your favourite food, curry rice!” “Great! Oh, the train is coming! Let's line up quickly, Mum!” We had just talked for 1 minute and the train came immediately. “Okay, let's go!

When I was sitting comfortably on my seat, I saw an old man so I gave my seat to him. “Thank you, kind little girl!” he said gratefully. I just smiled at him.

In the next station, a boy who was wearing a blue T-shirt got on the train and stood beside me. And his mother was sitting behind him. He started to play with his mobile phone. I was so curious that I looked at his phone to see what he was doing, “Go away! There isn't your matter!” the boy said impolitely. I calmed anger and told him that he should sit down first and played. But he ignored me! I felt very mad at that moment but I didn't express it on my face.

Soon after, some smoke was coming from the boy's phone but he didn't know. I felt strange and unpeaceful so I hid behind my mum. Also, some passengers were looking at him. “Bang!” His phone exploded. He dropped his phone and his hands turned red. The train stopped. I was pretty shocked and all the passenger stared and discussed about him. He turned into an embarrassed face.

Later, the police came and asked what happened. All the passenger pointed at the boy so the police walked to him. He gave the boy a good telling off while the boy was crying. When the police went away, the boy ran out of the train with an angry and fed up face. His mum chased after him when the door closed up. We went away and continued our way to the next station.

From this accident, I learnt that we shouldn't play with our phone when we are standing in a crowded place. And also, don't play too much or otherwise it will become an accident!

(Kitty Lau 6A 075)
Last Sunday, I went back home with my mum by train after shopping in Discovery Park Shopping Centre. When we were walking to the station, I felt very joyful since Mum had bought me a new toy! I got high marks in the test so Mum gave me a beautiful, new doll. How couldn’t I be happy?

Soon we went on the train. I saw a little boy playing Super Mario loudly with his mobile phone. I felt annoyed. The boy was very noisy and selfish. Many people were near him on the train. Yet he didn’t only ignore them, but also turned up his mobile phone’s volume.

Next, a terrible thing happened. I heard someone screaming. I went to see what was happening quickly. The boy’s mobile phone exploded! A lot of smoke came out from his mobile phone! His hands were hurt and very painful. And then, some people ran as fast as they could to tell the driver what happened.

At last, luckily, it was just a small fire. Not many people were hurt. However, the train line was blocked for half an hour. Moreover the boy was unlucky. His hands were hurt. He would probably need to stay in hospital for one month. I also felt upset because my new toy was burned! I had wanted a new doll for a long time! However, I learnt a lesson. Don’t play with mobile phones too long or you will have the same consequence as the boy.
An accident

Last Sunday morning, I was kicking my brand new football with my brother, Carston. Our old football was stolen by a dog so we enjoyed kicking this new football very much. Carelessly, Carston kicked it onto the road and then went to pick it up.

Meanwhile, a convertible racing car came by and knocked Carston down! A man with sunglasses got out of the car. He said, “Sorry, Sorry, are you okay?” “Of course I’m not okay, my melon-sized head is hurt!” Carston replied with tears. I was really frightened.

So, I requested dad to get Carston to the hospital immediately using the machine that he had just invented. We all got on the machine and it was so fast that we only took 60 seconds to get to the hospital. What a ride! It was faster that light!

The doctor applied some band aids to Carston’s head and we all went home.

I was thinking whether I could be an inventor like Dad, Inventing machines that could help people. From now on, I will study harder so that I can be a great inventor too!
An Unexpected Explosion

Last Sunday, Mum and I went shopping at Happy Shopping Centre in Tsuen Wan. I bought a lovely dress for my birthday party. After a while, we returned to the train station and went home by train.

While we were on the train, I noticed a boy who was playing with his mobile phone. I was standing next to him. All of the passengers looked fine.

All of a sudden, I smelt some smoke and it was coming from the boy’s phone. The boy was shocked and worried. The passengers were a bit scared too. Then it exploded. The passengers heard that sound and they escaped quickly. They screamed and ran away. They all wanted to get off the train.

At last, we heard an announcement. “Please calm down,” the driver said. After that, firemen came and rescued us. But actually, we were just filming a film. I learn that we should calm down when there is an accident.
Last week, my mum and I went to Blue Shopping Mall to buy clothes. After shopping, we returned home by train.

On the train, a boy was playing with his mobile phone happily. We watched him play different games. But suddenly, the mobile phone exploded loudly and black smoke started coming out. We were shocked and frightened. An old man reported to the driver and some staff came in the train to help us. The old man said to the boy, “Grandson, I told you not to play for many hours without stopping!” The boy nodded his head.

Luckily, nobody was injured. From this, I learnt that we shouldn’t use mobile phones for many hours.
The Panthera Leo (lion) and Panthera Tigris (tiger) are known as the ‘King of the beasts’. They have a lot of similarities yet they are different in many ways too.

Both lions and tigers are in the cat family. They can live for over twenty years. Although they are in the cat family, their appearances are very different. First, lions have yellowish, reddish or dark ochre brown fur while tigers have light gold, orange or white fur, which is rare, but all tigers have stripes. Lions weigh 145-205kg and they can be measured about 140-250cm whereas tigers weigh 65-305kg and can be measured about 200-390cm tall. They both have unique features. Adult male lions have a mane which is a ring of fur surrounding the head. Tigers have black and orange stripes.

Lions and tigers also have similar diets. They are both carnivores. They eat mainly medium-sized animals, such as zebras and buffalos but tigers also eat large-sized animals.

Lions and tigers live in different places. Lions are found in Africa and tigers are found in Southeast Asia and South eastern Siberia. They both live in grassland and savanna, but tigers live in taiga forests, too. Lions live in groups called prides but tigers live individually and have territories for each tiger. A male tiger’s territory is usually a size of 60-100 square kilometers.

Although lions and tigers are both known as ‘king of the beasts’, there are also many differences between them.
The Lion and The Tiger

Lions and tigers are both feared and respected in many nations. However, what would happen if lions and tigers fought over a kill in the wild?

First, we will analyze the possibilities of this happening. At first sight, it seems impossible. Lions mainly live in the Savannah in Africa, and by contrast most tigers live in forests in Asia. So, is it impossible? The answer may surprise you. There is a place in India where Asian lions and tigers live alongside each other.

What about their anatomy? They are quite close to each other in the family tree of all life on earth. Both of them are in the order Carnivora and under the scientific family felidae. They are even under the same genus, Panthera! However, a little bit of difference can have a huge impact. The scientific name of the lion is Panthera Leo, and the tiger Panthera Tigris.

What makes them so different then? It’s mostly physical. Tigers can weigh 300kg and can grow up to 350 cm in length whereas lions are smaller, weighing 200kg and having a length of about 250cm. Their colours are quite different. Lions are brown and tigers are mostly orange and black. They both can blend into their environment well.
But however different their physical appearances are, it is their behaviour that is the most defining. With both animals being the ultimate predators and hunters, animals such as deer, zebras, carrion and sometimes even elephants are on their menu. Their lifespans are quite similar too, but most die young before their predicted ages.

So what might really happen if they fought? The tiger is bigger and stronger. But will the tiger come out on top? No. Each lion is smaller and weaker, but they live in prides, so that is the critical point. The tiger, however strong it is, cannot withstand a pride of lions. And that’s why the lions dare to attack elephants and are the most dominant species in their habitats and why tigers sometimes fall prey to pack hunting dogs. Teamwork makes the difference.

Though both animals are dangerous, they are both endangered. They are worth saving. So, let’s save them!
Giant pandas and sloth bears are both in the bear family. They have a lot of similarities yet they are different in many ways.

Both pandas and sloth bears live in Asia, but pandas live in mountain ranges in China while sloth bears live in the subcontinent of India. Second, pandas weigh up to 150kg, but sloth bears weigh about 145kg. Pandas grow to a height of 75cm while sloth bears can be up to 92cm tall. Their colours are different too. Pandas are black and white. Sloth bears are black, dark brown and white.

Their diets are different, too. Pandas eat bamboos, 13kg or more a day. They are herbivorous. Sloth bears are the only bears that do not eat meat. They eat ants, honey, fruits, etc. Their lifespans are very different. Pandas can live up to 30 to 35 years, but sloth bears can just live 15 to 20 years. There are some special features of pandas. Only a few of these creatures still exist in the wild. Pandas have become the ambassador of endangered animals. They may appear sedentary but they are skilled tree-climbers and efficient swimmers. Pandas can take refuge in the nearest tree when in danger from predators. Sloth bears are expert hunters of termites, which they locate by smell.

Male and female giant pandas mate in spring, attracting each other with calls and odors. Female pandas give birth between 95 and 160 days after mating. They have their cubs in dens that they dig in the ground. One or two cubs are born but usually only one can survive. Sloth bears mate during the hot season. And females usually give birth to two cubs six to seven months later. After emerging from the den, cubs stay at their mother’s side for two to three years before heading off on their own.

Although giant pandas and sloth bears are in the bear family, there are also many differences between them.

My dream

In my dream, I was in old China. I was in a village. It was very noisy with horses yawning, hawkers yelling to get more people to buy Dim Sum and fruits. I saw many soldiers in armour, riding on horses. Suddenly, I heard someone shouting for help.

“Save me, I have fallen into a fast moving river. Please help me!”

I dashed to the river bank as fast as possible. I saw a soldier just like the ones I had seen in the village and next to me there was a horse. I thought the horse had gone crazy and thrown the soldier into the river. Meanwhile, I realized that there was a rope on the horse. I threw one end of the rope to the soldier and pulled him out of the river.
